The Regional Selections represent vineyard & varietal combinations which are recognised for excellence.

The motivation is quality, and the result is a range of wines which are hand-made from specific vineyards to bring you the best of each growing region.

About the variety

One of the more expressive grape varieties, and certainly one of the most sensitive to where it's grown, Riesling has flourished in Australia since the early 1800s.

Fruit for this Riesling is sourced from the cool climate of Eden Valley. The high altitude (approximately 500m) is especially favourable for high quality Riesling fruit, making the Eden Valley one of the pre-eminent districts in the country for this grape variety.

Following harvest, the grapes were pressed immediately and fermented in stainless steel. The fermentation was done at low temperatures to retain delicate aromatics and in stainless steel to maintain the vibrancy and purity of the fruit flavours. While the blend is predominantly free-run juice the winemakers utilised a small portion of the pressing material for added flavour.
